

I am a parent with five children, a teacher, and a pastor who believes strongly that there is not enough programing for children on an educational level. Any decision to deregulate the current situation which to me seems weak, is a very poor decision. There are far more options available out there for adults than are available for children. Please don't let things slide any further. Thank you,
Tom Norton